

AN EXHIBITION DAY

THOUSANDS SAW THE CONVENTION HALL GIFTS.

PRIZE ROOM WAS CROWDED

ARMOUR ROSE ATTRACTED THE MOST ATTENTION.

Convention Hall is slowly approaching completion. Plans for Grand Dedication January 2, When Sousa's Band Comes to Town.

The sidewalk in front of 86 Delaware, the Convention hall prize headquarters, was blocked frequently yesterday, as was also the room itself, with an eager throng of men, women and children, anxious to see the great array of gifts which the Convention hall will give away at the concert on January 2. The interest was not alone one of seeing, but hundreds bought tickets, and more were sold than in any one day since the sale first opened.

There was a change in the window display yesterday. The highly polished piano, the decorated pedestal and typewriter, the sewing machine, the plow, all were gone, and in the place where they had stood the big show window had been converted into a cozy little bazaar, where in all her glory could be seen the popular prize of the whole exhibit, Armour Rose, the beautiful Hereford heifer. Everybody went into raptures over her, upon a closer inspection than could be given in the parade, and many were the compliments and friendly pats of the hand the kindly creature received. She ate hay sparingly part of the time. Occasionally she would lie down for a time and chew the cud of contentment, but, standing or lying, she always bore herself with the quiet dignity and inborn grace which betokens the gentle blood of the aristocrat.

Armour Rose was the only representative from the live stock department upon exhibition yesterday, but this department keeps growing, as well as the other lines. A pair of full-blooded Yorkshire pigs were added to the list yesterday, among other gifts which were brought in. The list of donations for the day was:

Kaw Valley Swine Company, pair Yorkshire pigs, value $25.

Nellie Marshall, 1406 Campbell, making of lady's party, tea or tailor made gown.

Mrs. Jennie E. Lamm, Mexican hand carved Masonic case, value $5.

Mrs. E. D. Fisher, 1300 Summit street, one dozen silver knives, value $5.

E. H. Thomas & Co., free making of abstracts to all the real estate donated to the Convention hall.

G. J. Clark, set autograph engravings of 14 eminent lawyers, value, $12.50.

J. D. Sutton, general agent of the Washington Life Insurance Company, desiring to help along the good work, offers a $100 life insurance policy, valid up for one year, to the couple who will be married on the stage during the concert on January 2.

J. Walder Kirk, the famous dresser and traveling man, has presented a mysterious gift to the Convention hall through Secretary Clendenen. Mr. Kirk stipulates that the box containing the gift shall not be opened until after it has been awarded as a prize at the concert.

Mr. Gray yesterday reported the following additions to the fund for the $1,000 house:

Gen. City Lumber Company, Quincy, Ill., by Rusk & Oliver, agents, 1,000 feet white pine lumber.

Richards & Conover Hardware Company, trimmings for house.

Beady Lumber Company, 1,000 feet % Star yellow pine ceiling.

Brower Lumber Company, 1,000 feet spruce siding.

George D. Hope Lumber Company, 1,000 feet No. 1 yellow pine dimension.

Richardson & Co., 1118 East Sixteenth street, one term of fourteen lessons in Japanese art embroidery.

In the show window, yesterday, attracting much attention, was the $100 government bond given by the First National bank. Its display caused a good many quarters to drop into the ticket sale box.

The running of the Shetland pony and all the other live stock will be exhibited at the prize showrooms on different days next week and toward the last of the week the entire lot will be there in one grand happy family.

The Convention hall prize room was kept open last night. It was brilliantly lighted and the piano and other articles of beauty in the window attracted the attention of all who passed by causing them to stop and enter, and in most cases, to purchase tickets to the prize showrooms.

The interior of the room was jammed almost constantly, and with its railings to protect the goods and its long display tables covered with all sorts of articles, it looked like a church fair.

The fever for speculation, for taking chances, is in the American blood, and the truth of the assertion is plainly evident to anyone who will stand by and watch the people buy concert prize tickets. All sorts and conditions of men and women buy them—the rich, the poor, the church member, the unbeliever, the society lady, the maid, the workingwoman, the dave, everybody who takes a look at the heifer or the piano wishes for it, and buys a ticket. There will certainly be a remarkable number of tickets sold before the grand prize concert takes place on January 2.

PLANS FOR SOUSA NIGHT.

Afternoon Performance Will Probably Be a Concert Proper and a Big Ball in the Evening.

While the big gift concert in Convention hall will not be a large sum to the building committee, it seems quite certain that the formal opening of the great building by Sousa's band on February 22 will also bring in a sum not to be despised. It is probable the prize room will be open out of having an afternoon performance, which will be a concert proper at popular prices of admission, and which will certainly draw many people to the hall, and it is decided what the price will be, some of the committee favoring the charge of only 25 cents to any part of the hall while others think the prices should be graded from 25 cents to $1.00, according to the position of the seats.

For hearing the famous band play such an extraordinary occasion, that it would seem probable the seating capacity of the building will be taxed to the limit.

The evening entertainment will most undoubtedly be a grand ball, such as has been mentioned. If this plan is carried out, it will be the "swadlow" affair that ever happened in this country. With a floor which could accommodate hundreds of dancers, with room for more spectators, a few furnished music for dances, with the beautiful toilets, the gay and elaborate decorations, the flashing jewels, the radiant beauty of the women, all added to the fact that it would be the opening of the big building in the world ever carried out by public subscription and dedicated complete, free of debt, the event will be a day which will never be forgotten in this country and which would come to people but once in a lifetime.

There would seem to be no limit to the number of tickets which could be sold for $5 or $10 each for those desiring to take part, and for a slightly smaller amount to those desiring to look on. Certainly the day will be the one which will bring the largest single day's receipts in the entire work of the building of Convention hall.

APPROACHING COMPLETION.

Week by Week the Hall is Having the Finishing Touches Put Upon It.

Convention hall is slowly assuming an outward completeness. Almost all of the hundreds of window frames are ready to be fitted with heavy panes of glass. The work of putting in the glass is already well begun and by the last of the week the upper part of the building will be enclosed.

Comparatively few men are now at work on the building. There is not work enough now to keep a large force employed. This is the slow stage in the evolution of Con-

PEOPLE TURNED AWAY.

Great Sacrifice Sale at The Model Clothing House Was a Phenomenal Success.

The great sacrifice sale that was opened yesterday at the immense store of The Model Clothing Company, at Tenth and Main streets, was a record breaker for the city in every particular. Nothing like it has ever been seen in Kansas City in all of its great sales. A crowd of police officers had to be called at the time the doors were opened in the morning to keep the crowd back from the doors, so great was the throng that crowded the space at the doorway. All day long the police had all they could care for in preventing the house being overpowered. Even with all the facilities the immense establishment had at its disposal, hundreds of people were turned away and were unable to get inside the house to get a share in the great mark-down bargains that were carried away by hundreds. Inside the house there was presented the busiest scene imaginable. Every one of the regular and twenty-five extra salesmen were in their places and were kept on the double quick every minute of the day, selling the bargains that covered every counter on each of the four floors of the great Model building.

Some one may ask what has caused this tremendous mark-down sale. The answer is this: An old-time merchant was over-crowded with stock, he faced a crisis. Either he must go into bankruptcy and lose the reputation that he had established, or he must sacrifice his profit and dispose of the stock so that his obligations might be met. Ambitious to sustain the reputation he has won, he determined to raise the money to meet his obligations by the sacrifice of his stock. The stock could be replaced and his credit, if lost, could not be. That is the reason why The Model always filled with bargains, is now filled with the finest stock it ever had on hand, marked at low prices, and every article goes for the price marked on it. The sale will continue, the bargain is there, and the opportunity for profit is with the public.

TWO PERSONS INJURED.

Result of a Collision Between a Cable Car and a Teamster's Wagon at the Square.

A north bound cable train on the Westport line crashed into a wagon near Fifth and Walnut streets yesterday morning and two persons were slightly injured in the smashup. Charles Rique, a teamster, was backing his wagon against the sidewalk in front of a commission house, when the cable car struck the vehicle, turning it around and throwing Rique out with considerable force. He was bruised and injured about the head and limbs.

Rique's wagon was thrown against a building, in which Miss Olivia Randall, a daughter of George M. Randall, of the commission firm of Randall, Black & McFarland, was seated. The buggy was badly damaged. However, Miss Randall was more frightened than injured. She sustained only a few slight cuts and bruises. The cable train which crashed into Rique's wagon is an old one formerly used on the Fifth street line. The grimace lost control of his train and could not stop it in time to avert the accident.

DOLLS GO TO DAY.

Have Held a Very Successful Fair for Benefit of Children's Home for Two Weeks Past.

The dolls, who have been holding a fair this week, at the home of Mrs. P. D. Ridenour, 1418 East Eleventh street, were in a great hurry last night getting themselves and their wardrobes properly packed for their departure in the morning. They are going to Topeka, where they will next give an exhibition for the benefit of free kindergartens. As they have been traveling for some time, they will next give an exhibition for the benefit of free kindergartens.

Swell Dinner Party.

Was Given Last Night at the Coates House by Henry McGraw to Wyanadotte County Friends.

Henry McGraw, the well known attorney of Kansas City, Kan., gave a dinner party last evening at the Coates House to a lot of his political friends from Wyanadotte county. The spread was served in the banquet room and after the feast, short speeches and good stories were mingled with the wreaths of smoke for several hours. In the crowd were the active Republican workers of Wyanadotte county, and with them were a number of the straight Democrats and some fusion supporters, and in-story and song the atmosphere was during the campaign were all forgotten. It was a pleasant affair. Those present were: Henry McGraw, C. S. McConnel, Dr. J. L. R. Eager, George R. Watson, Nat Barnes, George Whitten, William L. Wood, C. D. Grant, Dr. H. M. Doxey, William R.
